خلاصه مقاله:

A three-year-old Pomeranian dog was brought to the veterinary clinic due to diarrhea, vomiting and dyspnea. Also, ingestion of insecticides was confirmed while taking a history from the dog owner. This dog was placed in an oxygen cage, and then after performing radiography and confirming the problem, it returned to its stable state with liquid therapy and washing the skin with special detergents and antidotal treatments. This article deals with the diagnosis and treatment of the poisoning by presenting a report of a case.
